Measured Yoga Therapy in Phoenix

What is Measured Yoga Therapy (MYT)?

MYT is based on the traditional medicine (Chinese and Ayurveda) concept that the human system is a communicating system measured in terms of bio-energy. MYT is a technique of bio-energy assessment combined with modern diagnosis that is used to recommend an appropriate yoga exercise – meditative, breathing, mostly chair-based practices – and the immediate impact is measured on bio-energy. Such an approach allows to predict reasonably the outcome of regular practice.

MYT has been developed by Life in Yoga Institute and has been accepted for publication by a PubMed journal <http://www.ijoy.org.in/aheadofprint.asp> under the heading Bioenergy and its Implications for Yoga Therapy.

MYT requires reading the 10 finger-tips within an electromagnetic field that is called Electro-photonic imaging. This indicates level of communication by major organ systems of the body, and suitable yoga exercises are prescribed. It is applicable for almost any kind of condition.

This method has shown impact in many conditions including: Diabetes, Snoring, Sleep Apnea, Weight-control, Pain, Arthritic conditions, Depression, Anxiety, Chronic Stress, Hypertension and Cardiovascular problems, Plantar fasciitis, Sleep disorders, etc.
